Proven player in data center construction

Initiate at BUY and target price of W45,000

We initiate coverage of GS E&C at BUY and target price of W45,000. Our target price was derived by applying a P/B of 0.73x, the average 12-month-forward P/B in 2021, to 12-month-forward BPS of W62,135. It implies 22% upside from the current share price.

We forecast 2026 revenue at W11.4tn (-8.2% YoY) and OP at W405.9bn (-7.3% YoY; OPM 3.6%). A decline in housing presales this year is likely to reduce building and housing construction revenue. However, data center projects convert into revenue more quickly than housing projects and should help support company-wide revenue. With housing presales expected to increase and data center revenue to continue, we forecast a return to revenue growth in 2027, with sales reaching W11.9tn (+4.4% YoY).

Proven player in data center construction

The company commands an extensive track record in domestic data centers. Data center capacity currently under construction stands at about 200MW (Goyang Magna 20MW, LG U+ Paju 70MW (IT building 1 50MW, building 5 21MW), and Naver Sejong 88MW). Among these, Paju AI data center (AIDC) is expected to see order wins of up to 200MW going forward. In 2H26, pipeline opportunities are expected including Busan Jangnim (40MW) and Ilsan Siksa (80MW; combined revenue of the two estimated at over W1tn), and two Seoul edge sites (10MW each). If development capital gains and operating revenue are captured alongside construction margins, further profitability improvement and upward earnings revisions should be possible. Within the Gangwon Donghae project spearheaded across group affiliates under GS Corp (total 2.4GW (1.2GW to be completed in 2028 and 1.2GW in 2029)), construction of the portion scheduled for 2028 completion is anticipated to begin this year. Although the company's precise project allocation has not been finalized yet, earnings estimates will likely be raised once details are finalized (assuming about W8bn-10bn per MW, total project value is estimated at around W9.6tn-12tn).

Core business turnaround expected next year + additional upside via nuclear power

For the housing business, the company presold 10,950 housing units in 1H26 alone, achieving 76.5% of its initial full-year guidance of 14,320 units, and this rebound in pre-sales is expected to translate into revenue starting in 2027. Moreover, the company's likely participation in Team Korea's large-scale nuclear power export programs as a non-lead contractor would also present additional upside.

I. Target price and valuation

Target price W45,000 reflects earnings recovery in 2027

We initiate coverage of GS E&C at BUY and target price of W45,000. Our target price was derived by applying a fair P/B of 0.73x, the average 12-month forward P/B in 2021, to 12-month-forward BPS of W62,135. It implies 22% upside from the current share price.

0.73x P/B reflects the average during housing recovery

In 2021, the valuation reflected expectations that recovering presales would lead to higher building and housing construction revenue. We believe that period's average P/B is appropriate given our expectations for a recovery in housing revenue and improving profitability in 2027. Confirmed data center contracts and additional orders could provide scope to raise our earnings estimates.

II. Earnings estimates

Earnings to bottom in 2026 and recover in 2027

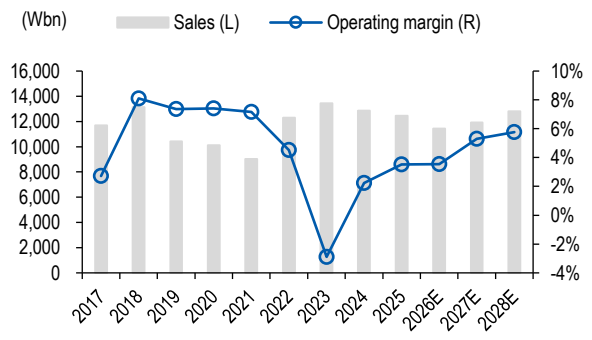

We forecast 2026 revenue at W11.4tn (-8.2% YoY) and OP at W405.9bn (-7.3% YoY). The decline in presales in previous years is expected to reduce building and housing construction revenue from W7.8tn in 2025 to W6.5tn in 2026, leading to a contraction in total revenue. Nevertheless, the company-wide operating margin should hold at 3.6% in 2026, compared with 3.5% in 2025, indicating that profitability is unlikely to deteriorate further despite lower revenue.

Housing revenue and profitability to improve together in 2027

We expect earnings momentum to change in 2027. Revenue is forecast to return to growth at W11.9tn (+4.4% YoY), while OP should rise to W631.7bn (+55.6% YoY). The OP margin is projected to improve 1.7%p, from 3.6% to 5.3%. In particular, building and housing construction revenue should recover from W6.5tn to W7.3tn, while the division's gross margin is expected to rise from 14.8% to 16.5%, driving the company-wide earnings improvement.

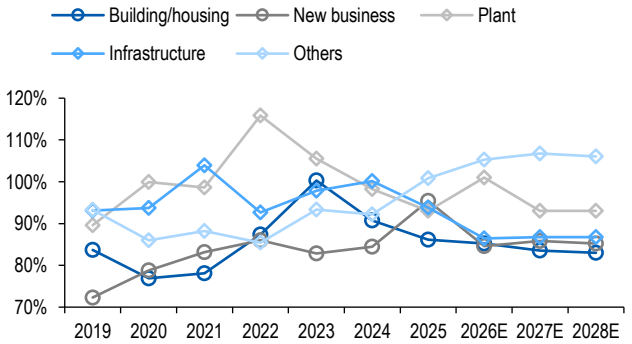

GS E&C completed presales of 10,950 housing units in 1H26, already achieving 76.5% of its full-year plan of 14,320 units. Given the time lag between presales and revenue recognition, we believe this year's recovery in presales will support earnings as the projects contribute to building and housing construction revenue from 2027 onward.

III. Investment points

1. Data centers: track record converts into order competitiveness

The company commands both extensive execution experiences and prospective pipeline across domestic data centers. Data center capacity currently under construction stands at about 200MW including Goyang Magna (20MW), LG U+ Paju (70MW), and Naver Sejong (88MW). In particular, Paju AIDC is expected to see order wins of up to 200MW going forward. In 2H26, pipeline opportunities are expected including Busan Jangnim (40MW) and Ilsan Siksa (80MW), and two Seoul edge sites (10MW each). Combined revenue from Busasn Jangnim and Ilsan Siksa projects alone is estimated at over W1.0tn.

The investment point for the data center business extends well beyond construction revenue. There is room for profitability improvement if the business scope broadens into development capital gains and operational income. Within GS Group's 2.4GW Gangwon Donghae data center projects, the initial 1.2GW, targeting completion in 2028, will likely break ground within this year. Although the company's precise project allocation has not been finalized yet, mid- to long-term order estimates will likely be raised once details are finalized.

2. Housing: presale recovery translating into 2027 earnings

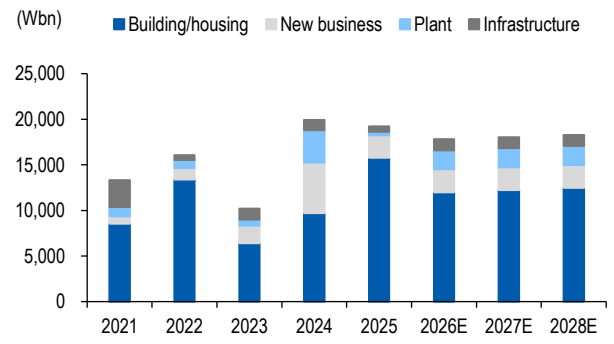

The housing business is the core business that will drive earnings normalization in 2027. The company already delivered 76.5% of the annual target by preselling 10,950 housing units in 1H26. Increased presales from this year will likely translate into revenue starting in 2027, with building/housing construction sales expected to increase 13.6% from W6.5tn in 2026 to W7.3tn in 2027.

Profitability is more crucial than top-line recovery. The building/housing business gross margin is expected to improve from 13.9% in 2025 to 14.8% in 2026 and 16.5% in 2027. As such, company-wide operatingmargin will likely increase from 3.6% in 2026 to 5.3% in 2027. Recovery in presales will lead to increased revenue and profitability normalization of the housing business, with overall OP set to rise 55.6% YoY in 2027.

3. Nuclear power: focus on possible order wins rather than earnings

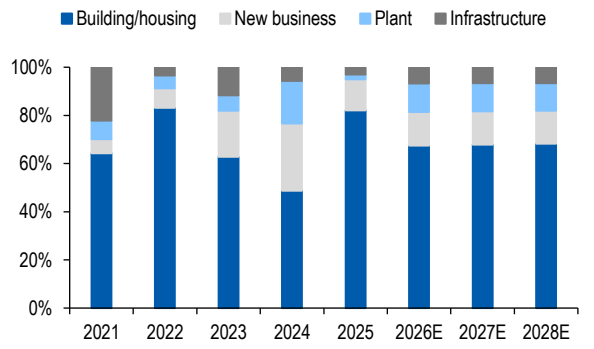

Nuclear power should be viewed as prospective upside rather than a key driver of current earnings estimates. The company is likely to participate in Team Korea's large-scale nuclear power projects as a non-lead contractor. Once its participation is specified, it may lead to an expansion of new orders. At the moment, it seems premature to estimate exact order amount or revenue recognition timing. Therefore, the core investment thesis should center on data centers and housing earnings recovery, while factoring in nuclear power upon contract milestones going forward.
