3Q26 preview: OP likely to beat expectations despite tube shortage

In 3Q26, Kolmar Korea will likely post sales of W833.6bn (+22% YoY) and OP of W97.7bn (+67.6% YoY), slightly beating market expectations of W92.1bn.

On a separate basis, we estimate sales at W430bn (+34% YoY) and OP at W68bn (OPM 15.8%). During its 2Q26 earnings call, management guided for 3Q26 sales of about W430bn, similar to 2Q26, noting that while order intakes would surpass the 2Q26 level, five working days would be lost on summer holidays. While increasing orders had raised expectations for a guidance beat, tight supply in tube packaging containers will likely cap 3Q26 sales near the guided level. Given solid demand, deferred volumes may roll over into 4Q26 revenue depending on tube supply. By product, the portion for sun care products, which drove growth in 2Q26, will likely decrease, while that for skin care will likely increase.

The Chinese entity will likely post sales of W34.0bn and OP of W1.5bn (OPM 4.4%) on forex pressure and margin contraction. Yonwoo will likely see sales at W81bn (+31% YoY) and OP at W0.5bn (OPM 0.6%) as demand for sun care pump containers slows after peaking in 2Q26.

4Q26 growth visibility remains intact

We maintain BUY and revise up our target price to W185,000, derived by applying a target P/E of 19x to 12-month-forward EPS. The multiple reflects the historical average 12-month-forward P/E from June to August 2024, when both order intakes and production capacities expanded at the domestic entity. Increased orders from the existing cosmetics brands with bigger sales scale and the expansion of new projects from global clients will likely support earnings growth in 2027.

We estimate 4Q26 separate sales at W370bn (+38% YoY) on order expansions and deferred shipments from 3Q26. We believe the recognition of deferred shipments depends on tube supply.
